Ceramic, Underglaze, Glaze, Wood and Carpet, 2017

ode to waking up, super early and immediately pouring hot water through the coffee dripper into your mug, setting it aside to cool down for a spilt second but realize you don't have enough time to enjoy it and read like hoped for, should've been out the door and on the way ten minutes ago but spent way too long choosing something you were comfortable and felt good wearing, willingly ignoring the time because you don't want to go in the first place.

out the door and that cup of coffee doesn't cross your mind until well on your way
